

10 things to learn at home during this period of self-isolation

One of the things that the NHS advocates (along with self-distancing and hand hygiene) is the '5 Ways to Wellbeing', which includes learning new things and challenging yourself. So here are a number of websites that allow you to learn totally new subjects or revisit old knowledge to keep your brain ticking along during the enforced lockdown. But this could also be something to carry on with once life starts getting back to normal – whatever that may look like. Have a browse!

Open University Free Courses

www.open.edu/openlearn/free-courses/full-catalogue#

Includes: Languages, History, Nature, Psychology, Science, Politics – all at a beginners, intermediate or advanced level so you can pick what is exactly right for you. There really is so much to choose from. The number of hours for study vary from 1 to 55. All currently free.

Hertfordshire Adult and Family Learning Service (HAFLS)

Hertfordshire County Council are offering some of their courses online now – you have to book on for a particular date to join the course but there are some interesting subjects that you might like to access from your home, such as Photography For Beginners or Getting Blogging. There are a mixture of free and paid courses.

As an aside to learning online, this libraries link allows you to access a number of magazines and newspapers online, so that you can keep up to date with specialist and general current affairs: www.hertfordshire.gov.uk/services/libraries-and-archives/books-and-reading/newspapers-and-magazines/newspapers-and-magazines.aspx

BBC Learning

www.bbc.co.uk/bitesize

Now mainly available to help with homeschooling, there are still some interesting topics to read on BBC Bitesize, including for revision. No TV licence is required, except for content on BBC iPlayer.

Futurelearn - www.futurelearn.com

Free to access 100s of courses, ranging from 'Become a better music teacher' to 'Engaging with Controversies in the Food System', via 'The British Army 1815-1945'. The breadth of subjects has to be explored to be understood but all are short courses over a few weeks and indicate the number of hours of study per week that would be expected to complete the course.

Educational videos to watch, learn and inwardly digest.

Two different sites to explore here:

TEDEd: ed.ted.com

Although mainly aimed at children, there is so much here of interest to any age.

Have a look at their ed.ted.com/series page.

Crash Course: thecrashcourse.com

All sorts of engaging educational videos from Sigmund Freud to the Physics of Opera – have a browse and learn whilst being entertained. You will be absolutely amazed at the variety of subjects you can learn about here. Incredible!

Duolingo

www.duolingo.com

Have you always wanted to brush up on your French or Spanish before travelling? Or to impress your grandchildren with your linguistic skills? Now is your chance to choose between 35 languages to learn to different levels (including Klingon!).

Nature Detectives

www.woodlandtrust.org.uk/blog/2020/03/nature-detectives/

An updated webpage giving ideas of things to do outside in winter as well as nature activities if you are self-isolating. Again, mainly designed for children but sometimes its nice to have things that are easy to do and understand!

Geography Games

world-geography-games.com/world.html

Geography gaming! Very easy to spend an hour or two playing 'educational' games such as naming flags or countries or rivers or any geographical feature around the world. Very useful if you are missing regular quizzes.

Create your Family Tree

There are a few sites that can help you start researching your family tree – they start out free but be aware that if you want to delve deeper, you may well have to subscribe. These are worth a look to set you on your way.
